Project Description and Implementation Arrangements

I. Project Description

1. Project Area. The project total intervention area covers approximately 87 municipalities. The Project will initially focus on approximately 43 of these municipalities, including up to 4 inhabited by indigenous communities. Subject to IFAD and Borrower agreement of sufficient progress in priority municipalities, project investments will also be applied to the remaining municipalities.

2. Target Population. The project will benefit directly approximately 29,700 households, out of which 22,500 will participate of mobilization and organizational activities; 4,600 will be leaders from other communities; and 2,600 will be trained youth from households that receive no other benefits from the project. Figures are approximate.

The Project target group includes households settled under the Land Reform Programme, quilombolas and agro-extraction communities, women babaçu coconut breakers, river dwellers, traditional (Caiçaras) fishermen and indigenous communities. The Project will give priority to women and youth, as they are the most vulnerable segments of the population and, at the same time, the main actors in the development of the territory.

3. Goal. The overall goal of the Project is to contribute to reduce rural poverty and inequalities (gender, ethnic and generational) in the State of Maranhão, promoting sustainable and inclusive development.

4. Objective. The development objective of the Project is to increase income and nutrition of the rural poor and strengthen their capacity to manage their organizations and adapt to climate change in the Project area.

5. Components. Besides management and coordination, the Project will have two core components that envisage a number of complementarities among its activities.

5.1. Component 1. Organizational strengthening and capacity development. The objective of this component is to strengthen the beneficiaries' capacity to participate more effectively in the local development processes, better manage their organizations, reduce gender inequalities and create opportunities for youth. The activities will be organized around the following areas: (i) Mobilization and community organization, which will include teams of mobilizers working in the communities, along with training activities to disseminate information about relevant public policies and programmes and their operational procedures; (ii) Strengthening the capacities of economic organizations (cooperatives and associations) that work primarily in the processing and marketing of production, mainly through training and technical assistance focused on managerial issues; and (iii) Gender and youth, which will involve training beneficiaries and project personnel to promote the participation of women and youth in project and community activities and support for access by women and youth to government programmes. The Project will also support the existing networks of rural technical schools that have been successful in providing technical education for rural youth (Escolas Família Agrícola – EFAs and Casas Familiares Rurais – CFRs) but are grappling with serious infrastructure constraints such as lack of classrooms.

- 5.2. Component 2: Food security, productive development and market access. The objective of this component is to increase and diversify beneficiaries' agricultural production, enhancing food security, improving the access to markets in favourable conditions, and improve the sustainability of production and its adaptation to climate change. The main activities will include: (i) technical assistance and training to improve productive activities, natural resource management and market access; (ii) co-financing of productive investments in production development plans, to be prepared according to the beneficiaries' profiles; (iii) co-financing of socio-environmental investments, including environmental initiatives, and the use of renewable energy, water supply systems for human consumption, support to quilombolas and traditional communities for land titling whenever the Borrower's capacity allows it and innovative demonstration units to promote experimentation and learning among beneficiaries; (iv) supporting indigenous communities through a tailored-made strategy.
